This panel will provide a balanced examination of the effectiveness of gang injunctions, with particular emphasis on ordinances enacted by local municipalities. Panelists will examine the due process concerns raised by gang injunctions and will weigh the costs of enforcement against the benefits. Particular attention will be paid to implications of gang injunctions on race relations within affected communities.

Wade Chow is a San Francisco Assistant District Attorney. He oversees the Gang Violence Unit of the San Francisco District Attorney's office and, in 2009, successfully prosecuted a member of the Norteño gang for violating San Francisco's gang injunction.

Barry Krisberg is the Director of Research and Policy and Lecturer in Residence at the Chief Justice Earl Warren Institute on Law and Social Policy. He testified as a gang injunction expert for the defendant alleged gang members at the Fruitvale gang injunction hearing before the Alameda County Superior Court.

Sarala Nagala is an associate in the San Francisco office of Munger, Tolles & Ollson LLP. In 2010, Ms. Nagala, in coordination with the ACLU of Southern California, successfully defended the constitutional rights of a class of individuals who were served with and subjected to an Orange County gang injunction without having been given an opportunity to contest their alleged gang membership in court.

Alex Tse is a Deputy City Attorney at the Office of the San Francisco City Attorney Dennis J. Herrera. He is the Chief Attorney of the Neighborhood and Resident Safety Division and supervises the team that handles civil gang injunctions.
